CHARLEROI HOLDS WASHINGTON TO TIE SCORE IN FAST GAME

Many Penalties Prevent Locals from Putting Over Winning Score

LARGE CROWD AT THE GAME

Saturday afternoon the Charleroi High School football team played the Washington High School team to a tie in an exceedingly hard fought game. With Weaver and Gray unable to play, because of injuries, the local team outplayed the visitors, who were all big men, and only hard luck prevented them from scoring. We can say, with confidence that the locals are a better team than the boys from the county seat.

The visiting captain won the toss and chose the south goal a stiff breeze blowing in that direction at the time. The locals kicked, and the visitors advanced the ball to the middle of the field, where they were forced to kick. The locals then started down the field with the ball, but a penalty of fifteen yards finally caused them to lose the ball. The visitors then tried a forward pass in which the ball was passed to the left halfback who in turn passed the ball to the full back. The forward pass was supposed to be made by the latter, but a Charleroi player got through the opposing line and tackled him before he could locate the receiver for the pass.

In the second quarter the locals completely outplayed the visitors. A long end run by Dennis and line plunges by Brown brought the ball to within fifteen yards of Washington's goal line. A fifteen yard penalty prevented the C. H. S. team from scoring. In the third quarter the locals were again prevented from scoring by a little hard luck. The C. H. S. boys had possession of the ball in Washington's territory. A forward pass was thrown by Webster, which Wagner caught a few yards from Washington's goal line. Before he could get a good grip on the ball he was tackled, and the ball rolled from his hands in back of the visitor's goal line. A Washington player fell on the ball thus making a touchback. This play gave the ball to Washington on their twenty yard line.

In the fourth quarter Washington threw a scare into the local ranks when they neared the local goal line. While attempting to hold them back Captain O'Brien and Chalfant were injured and were forced to cease playing. A penalty of fifteen yards on the visitors lost for them a chance to score.

Both teams tried to kick goal from the field. The visitors tried many forward passes but only one was successful. Brown played a fine game, and he continually plunged through the opposing ranks. Wagner, at left end, quite often managed to break through the opposing line and break up their plays. Webster, besides calling signals, played better in Saturday's game than in any other game this year. O'Brien made his presence

MAKES SUNDAY FLIGHT IN MONESSEN AIRPLANE

Mrs. A. F. Murray, of Charleroi, was among those who "took a spin" in the airplane operating from Linn's grove, Sunday afternoon. In company with her husband and others she visited the aviation field, and while there was dared to make the flight. She finally consented, and in a few minutes was sailing over Charleroi at a great height. When she returned to the field she was asked by her companions if she was scared, and replied in the negative, although from indications the trip was evidently very exciting to her.

SETH THOMAS DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

Seth Thomas, who was injured on Friday afternoon last about 1:30 o'clock, when the Dodge truck he was driving was struck by an express at Crook's crossing, just above Roscoe, died at the Mercy hospital, Saturday evening at 8:40 o'clock. The condition of Mr. Thomas was so serious when he reached the hospital that it was decided to try a transfusion of blood, and a brother, Alfred, volunteered for the operation. The patient rallied somewhat, and a similar operation was tried Saturday morning, but the shock and loss of blood had been so great from the accident that he died Saturday evening. He is survived by his widow and one son Curtis, a student in the Charleroi High school; four brothers, Alfred, Henry, Thomas and Jeremiah, and four sisters, Mrs. James H. Hileman and Mrs. Frank Guswiler of Roscoe; Mrs. Edw. Latta of Elco and Mrs. George Chambers of East Pittsburg. Funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon, with interment in Howe cemetery.

FUNERAL SATURDAY FOR HARRY WELSH

The funeral services for Harry Welsh, late of the United States Army were held on Saturday morning last with Requiem High Mass in St. Jerome's church, Rev. W. D. Fries was celebrant, with Rev. John B. Hagen of Coal Centre, Deacon and Rev. S. A. Walsh, sub-Deacon. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Hagen, who served in the same Division, the Third, to which the deceased was attached, but at a later period. The pall bearers were former service men and the services were largely attended.

Place Stamp of Approval On Nemacolin Golf Links

S. Davidson Herron, 1919 amateur golf champion of the United States, George A. Ormiston, nationally prominent in golf circles and President of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association; Robert L. James, 1919 Western Pennsylvania Champion and Richard C. Long of the Stanton Heights Golf club, placed their stamp of approval on the course of the Nemacolin Country Club at Beallsville yesterday.

The visit of these men so prominent in the golf world attracted hundreds of people to the Nemacolin club in the afternoon, and the National Pike was crowded with automobiles of visitors during the afternoon. During the morning the visitors inspected the course, and at noon were the guests of James W. Walker at his home for dinner. In the afternoon they played a foursome to a large gallery. They were accompanied by S. Ellsworth Giles, builder and architect of the course.

The visitors were unanimous in declaring that the Nemacolin course when completed would be one of the finest in Western Pennsylvania. They commented especially on the No. 5 hole, completely surrounded by woodlands. It is 375 yards in length.

An amusing feature of the second round of play occurred when the players were approaching the fifth green. Three ladies were standing directly in the middle of the fairway, discussing, possibly, politics, entirely obvious of players and gallery, and play had to be suspended until their attention was called to their interference. As soon as they say they were such conspicuous features they beat a hasty retreat.

Music

Music is one of the least expensive forms of amusement today. And not only is music inexpensive, but it gives one an untold amount of pleasure and happiness.

People who are going without some sort of music in their homes are denying themselves a whole lot of pleasure which could be theirs just as well as not.

Good pianos cost today anywhere from $350.00 to $700.00. If someone in your family can play, or wants to learn, then of course a piano is the thing for you to have. But if no one can play, then a good player-piano is what you want.

Think of the good times you can could have with a player-piano. Every member of the family can play it and enjoy it. And your repertoire is unlimited. You can play anything you want to—songs—dance pieces, marches, overtures, hymns—everything.

As we have had the pleasure of knowing you for some time, we want to advise you that on October 19 a sale of player-pianos will commence in our establishment; a sale which will be based around the famous Schroeder Bros., player, which will bt offered at the low price of $595. This instrument is one of the very best type of player-pianos, being the most modern in construction and most superior in musical qualities. We especially recommend it for home use.

Due to our splendid easy payment system, you can have this instrument placed in your home on a very nominal payment down and on very small future payments monthly. Don't put this matter off of getting a player-piano another day! Make up your mind that you too are going to get some of the pleasure that music brings! We are awaiting a call from you.

DUNLEVY DEFEATS STURGEON IN FAST GAME

The Dunlevy Soccer team eliminated the Sturgeon team in a hard fought game at Dunlevy yesterday afternoon. A monster crowd was present to witness the contest, which was hotly contested all the way. The result of the game puts the Dunlevy team in line for the National cup, and will be pitted against some of the best soccer teams in the country. OPENING MEETING OF D. A. R. AT CALIFORNIA

The opening meeting of the Monongahela Valley Chapter, D. A. R., was held at California, Pa., on Saturday last, with a large attendance, there being present over one hundred members from the different Chapters, Uniontown, Washington, Monongahela, Donora, Monessen, Charleroi and California being represented in the number present.

Mrs. Edna E. Sparks, Pennsylvania State Regent, D. A. R., was honor guest, and spoke at length, her subject being "Americanism." Mrs. John Work, wife of Judge Work, of Uniontown, a member of Great Meadows Chapter, and Miss Jennie Hall of Washington, Pa., Chapter, also made addresses.

The meeting was held in the library of the State Normal School, which was tastefully decorated with the national colors and autumn flowers. After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge. The next meeting of the Chapter will be held on November 16, at the home of Mrs G. L. Neal, in Donora.

Those from Charleroi attending the meeting on Saturday were Mrs. R. M. Ackison, Mrs. H. J. Repman, Mrs. John N. O'Neil, Mrs. V. P. Stewart, Mrs. E. E. Piper and the Misses Delia Swan, Nora Swan, Clara Cooper, Sarah F. Braden, Margaret Laird, Edith Woodhall and Minnie B. Richardson.

Take Steps to Have One of Larger Companies Serve Domestic Users

PRICES WILL LIKELY BE HIGH

A committee representing the Donora Community Service were in Pittsburg Friday afternoon, to see what could be done toward securing for Donora people an adequate supply of coal for domestic purposes at a reasonable rate. The committee was acting purely in the interests of the people, who are facing the the possibility of extremely high coal prices even if an adequate supply can be obtained.

Despite the fact that wagon mines have been opened at every place where a few acres of coal can be found, Donora and all valley communities are closer to a coal famine than ever before. Coal brokers are offering and paying small producers as high at $13.50 per ton, it is said, or over 50 cents per bushel. As a result the home produce has been going into railroad cars for shipments to other points.

Last week a prominent business man in Donora was told that local operators could not afford to sell him coal. Tuesday the matter was taken up with the Complaints Committee of the Donora Community Service and the members went to Pittsburg on Friday to take up the situation with one of the large coal companies, with a view of getting them to insure an adequate supply of coal to Donora people, and at a price that would be within reason.

Dr. W. H. Lewis, of Donora, interested in a number of the smaller ventures in the vicinity of Donora said that he was sure his people would be willing to help along with the solution of the problem by turning over at least a day's output of the mines at a fair price to be agreed upon. Other small producers are to be interviewed with a view of cooperating in this movement.

The matter of interesting the larger company, however, is the chief hope of the community, for the small producers are unable to reach the larger company's small production costs, and hence the price would be higher. If the proposition goes through Donora domestic consumers will be served by auto trucks and wagons, the hauling cost to be added to the price of the coal at the mine.

Charleroi and other communities in the valley hope to see the move a success, for if it can be done in Donora it can be accomplished elsewhere in the valley.

HIDING SOMETHING FROM US.

Exposing deceptions of the League of Nations Association, the Republican Publicity Association through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., issues the following:

"A League of Nations Association cooperating with Democratic candidates has issued a bulletin which undertakes to defend the League of Nations Covenant by telling us what it does not do. Among other things the bulletin says:

"The League of Nations is not unchangeable. Its Constitution may be readily amended and doubtless will be as occasion demands. Any nation may withdraw from the League by giving two years notice."

"The provision of the League Covenant itself regarding amendments declares:

"Amendments to this covenant will take effect when ratified by the members of the League whose representatives compose the Council and by a majority of the members of the League whose representatives compose the Assembly.

"This means that the vote of the Council must be unanimous and that in addition there must be a maojrity of the members of the Assembly favorable to the amendment. That is the provision under which the League of Nations Association declares the Constitution may be 'readily amended.' Since the real purpose of the League is to get the United States in a position where it must bear the burdens of the world it will at once be manifest that other nations represented in the Council would not consent to any amendment which would relieve the United States from obligations it had been induced to assume. It would be readily possible to amend the League Covenant by increasing the burdens placed upon the United States but there would be a prompt hitch in the proceedings if there were an attempt to relieve the United States from any of its undertakings.

"The League of Nations Associations also asserts that 'Any nation may withdray from the League by giving two years' notice.'

"But that is not what the covenant provides. Article I contains the following:

"Any member of the League after two years' notice of its intention to do so, withdraw from the League, providing that all its international obligations and all its obligations under this Covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal.'

"The defenders of the League assert that any nation may withdraw by giving two years' notice, but fail to add the provision contained in the League Covenant. This is a clear attempt to deceive the peoplt by omitting the most vital part of the quotation. The condition is not that the nation desiring to withdraw shall have fulfilled its obligations up to the time of giving notice, but up to the time of its withdrawal, which would be two years after the time of giving notice.

"If the United States as a member should find itself embarrassed and should give the two years' notice, there would be a two years' period during which those nations having control of the League Council and Assembly could add to the obligations of the United States and prevent its withdrawal, except in a manner that would probably precipitate war—with the United States on one side and the combined strength of the other League members on the other. The attempt of the League of Nations Association to mislead the voters by quoting only a part of the section of the Covenant relating to withdrawal serves to emphasize the vital importance of this feature of the Covenant."

FOLLOWING TAMMANY METHOD

Why should the Republican papers poke fun at Governor Cox because he sticks so pertinaciously to his program of abuse of his opponents? He is conducting his fight for the presidency of the United States in the way that he fully believes is best suited to his talents and that, from his standpoint, promises the best results. There is no doubt at all that he very carefully considered the best means, according to his abilities, of achieving his ambition, and that he decided that villification and traudecement were admirably suited to his style of oratory. And it will be readily admitted that he is the very best little villifier who ever sought to reach the presidency by a campaign of misrepresentation and abuse.

If the Cox mind is going to be as rambling and irresponsible in dealing with problems of state as it has in discussing campaign funds the people will hardly care to intrust the helm of the ship of state to his keeping.

The general election takes place November 2, two weeks away, and every Republican should make his or her arrangements to be at their respective polling places in order to vote the straight Republican ticket. Over-confidence should not alloy any Republican to neglect this important duty, for it is essential that not only the presidential ticket, but likewise the congressional and assembly tickets also be carried through. This can be done by every Republican realizing their duty on election day and performing it.

Believed to Be Oldest Watch.

According to well-authenticated records turned up recently in Nuremberg, together with a watch believed to be the oldest in existence, that instrument appears to be the oldest extant sample of the watchmakers' art. It was made in Nuremberg in the early part of the sixteenth century. The works of this watch are altogether of iron. The mainspring has an auxiliary spring in the form of a pig's bristle, designed to perform the regulatory function. The second-hand was still far in the future when this timepiece was made, so it has but the hour and minute hands. Perhaps the most emphatic difference from the modern ideal that this watch exhibits, however, is its extreme thickness. The wafer as model for a watch was far beyond the ability of the medieval artisan, for he had not learned yet how to arrange the works of a timepiece practically in a single plane.

Spurious Longevity.

Sir G. C. Lewis in his "Notes and Queries" (1862) expressed his disbelief in any case of a human life exceeding 100 years. He was wrong, of course, yet fundamentally his theory is not to be set aside lightly, owing to the fact that in numerous cases of extraordinary longevity errors have crept in. For instance, the evidence said to exist in registers has often been proved to refer to two persons of the same name. In one sensational case, Carr, of Shoreditch, England, said to be 207 years of age, it was discovered that a figure 2 had been written over a figure 1. As regards tombstones there is one, at first startling, instance of 300 being first carved, which may have been an ignorant stone cutter's way of making 39.—Exchange.

A "Brief" Honeymoon.

Lord Reading is nothing if not original. His honeymoon was quite unique. He told his friends that, after being called to the bar, he was to be married and spend his honeymoon in Spain. That sounded extravagant for a budding barrister, probably not overburdened with pocket money. But he was businesslike even then, and it was found later that a certain firm of solicitors had given him as a wedding present a commission to take evidence in Madrid. So he took his wife with him and combined business and pleasure.—Exchange.

Compete With Pyramids.

The only competition of the pyramids, says the Automobile Blue Book, is the famous painted rocks near Maricopa, Cal. These rocks are what remain of the magnificent old Sun Worship temple where thousands of Indians gathered each year. The rocks were discovered by early Spanish explorers in the seventeenth century, and it is believed that the group was nine or eleven dozen centuries old when the American Indians first saw it.

Aspirin and Quinine.

A Spanish physician has found as the result of a year's experience that the combination of aspirin and quinine is undesirable and may be dangerous. According to the Scientific American's account of the investigation the catalytic action of aspirin in the compound changes the quinine to a poisonous derivative called quino-toxin. The poison is said to cause death, though the Spanish investigator records no fatal cases.

Something Wrong.

"Here's the announcement of a head waiter's retirement," remarked Mr. Jibway.

"Very low, I presume?" said Mr. Dubwaite.

"Why, well to do, but I don't understand how a man could be a head waiter for forty years in a first-class restaurant, as this fellow has been and at present draw more than $100,000."—Pittsburgh Age-Herald.

PERFORMER IN HARD LUCK

Youthful Acrobat Deeply Humiliated in the Presence of the Girl of His Heart.

A group of neighborhood youngsters had organized a circus at the home of a boy whose 8-year-old sister was my girl. I was to be the star trapeze artist and was all dressed up in a bathing suit with a window curtain sash around my waist.

The circus was held in a vacant lot; all the dogs and cats in the neighborhood were the menagerie. The trapeze hung from a tree.

In due time my act was announced. I climbed the rope to my perch in approved fashion and went through a few minor stunts with generous applause from the audience. Then I made ready for the final act, which was to astound them all, especially my girl. I began to swing violently to get the trapeze going as high as possible, and with a last look into the fair one's eyes I swung out over the heads of the assembly. But I didn't swing back. The bar of my trapeze—a section of broom handle—broke, and I sailed on in a beautiful curve to the feet of my fair lady.

From this painfully embarrassing position I was hauled by the actors, actresses, and spectators. The extent of my injuries was a cut lip, a ruined window curtain sash, and a severely lacerated pride—Exchange.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN PRESIDENT

Ambitious Party Leaders Prevented the Nomination of Judge David Davis in 1872.

In 1872, David Davis of Illinois missed his chance for the presidency through the overweening ambition of Horace Greeley of New York, and B. Gratz Brown of Missouri. The Liberal Republican convention met at Cincinnati, with thousands of prominent Republicans in revolt against Gen. Grant, and the powers in the Republican party which controlled it. Davis, who had been a former Democrat, had become a Lincoln Republican, and Lincoln put him on the Supreme bench. He would have had a great deal of the Lincoln support and a large Democratic following, if he had been nominated; but Greeley was ambitious—and so was Brown—and they formed a combination to nominate themselves, defeating Davis, who might have been elected over Grant. The business interests of the country were distrustful of Greeley, but they had confidence in Davis. That the Grant administration and the Republican party, as then controlled, was unpopular, was shown in the great Democratic congressional triumph of 1874, after Grant had been elected a second time.—Detroit News.

Useful Seaweed.

From seaweed when reduced to ashes are gained some of the most beneficent preparations in use today. Some of these are iodine, bromide, hydriodic acid, iodides of sodium, mercury, potassium, magnesium and calcium. From it are extracted coloring matters, volatile oil, and its ingredients are used in photography. It is further employed for coverings for flasks in the packing of glass, china and other brittle wares for packing furniture, stuffing pillows and mattresses, and in upholstering. The claim is made that furniture stuffed with seaweed is kept free of moths and other insects, owing to its salty flavor. Seaweed is one of the best non-conductors of heat and finds use in thermatics, especially in the insulation of refrigerators and in refrigerating plants. It is also used between walls and floors to prevent the transmission of sound. The demand for this article has grown to such an extent that it is now being gathered in large quantities by farmers and fishermen along the shores of Prince Edward Island where it is dried and prepared for shipment to the United States.

Pretty Legend

The Koreans tell a story that sparrows hop on but two feet and that flies rub their feet together when they alight, in the following way: The sparrow and flies had a quarrel and decided to ask the governor of the Korean provinces to arbitrate the matter. He found them both wrong, and ordered them both whipped, and it made the sparrows jump up and down with pain and the flies put their hands together and prayed to be forgiven. The governor forgave them both, but as a sign he decreed that sparrows should always hop and that flies should rub their feet together when they alighted.

Willoughby says in his work on ornithology that the duck is so called "because she feeds on scaup, broken shellfish," but later authorities state that the name of the bird is properly derived from the "mussel-scaups" or "mussel-scalps," the beds of rock or sand on which mussels are aggregated.

There are three species of the scaup duck in America, which bear numerous names, mostly local, as broadbill and bluebill (both with various qualifying words prefixed), blackhead and black neck (with qualifying words), raft-duck, mussel-duck, greenhead, grayback, flock-duck, flocking duck, troop-fowl, shuffler, etc.

A Fitting Theme.

"Rimer showed me his new poem. It is called, 'Sonnet to But One.'

"Humph! By rights it should have called ..."

WON PRAISE FOR HISTORY

Work of Charles Rollin, Famous Frenchman, Was for Many Years a Standard Book.

No less a personage than Voltaire praises the work known as "Rollin's Ancient History," which, though now obsolete, was for years in its English translation the standard work on the Egyptians, Carthaginians, Assyrians, and other ancient nations.

Voltaire, while praising the work highly, alleges that it would have been better if the author had been more of a philosopher, able to distinguish better the false from the true, incredible from the probable, and to sacrifice the useless. Notwithstanding, he said it is the best compilation in any language, because compilers are seldom eloquent, and Rollin was.

Charles Rollin was a Frenchman, and he died at Paris, the place of his birth, on Sept. 14, 1741. This celebrated man rose from poverty and obscurity to a position of the greatest dignity. He was the son of a cutler, yet at the age of 23 he was made rector of the University of Paris, which office he adorned by the sweetness of his character, his learning, probity and moderation.

Until fifty years ago his history was a stock book, when it began to be neglected on account of the many discoveries giving a new cast to our knowledge of ancient history.—Chicago Journal.

INDIAN FIGHTER NOT A GIANT

Daniel Boone Said to Have Been Small in Stature—Man of Deep Religious Conviction.

Daniel Boone is generally pictured as a giant in stature, of swarthy complexion, and a grim leader at a grim period in the country's history. Archibald Henderson in th Century draws a very different picture of the pioneer. According to this scribe Boone was a man of eight inches, although broad of shoulder, and his eyes were a noble blue topped by fair eyebrows. He was simple, benign and simple. He was a super-woodsman, a master Indian fighter, but only an indifferent hunter.

While acting as an agent for a company seeking wealth through land grants and colonization, he himself looked upon his work as that of an instrument of Providence, specially ordained by God to settle the wilderness. This religious fervor he carried with him in his wildest adventures and most bloody battles, and he promptly credited every success, great or small, to Providence. His two greatest exploits were the exploration of the trans-Alleghany region and the opening of the Transylvania trail, the path that ran through the Cumberlands and opened the bounties and richness of Kentucky to the pioneer hordes from the Atlantic seaboard.

If You Are Ambitious.

I have noticed that men who have climbed to great heights, as a rule, have chosen the job which held the larger future, regardless of what it might pay in immediate returns. It was not the larger salary they were after, but the larger opportunity. It was the job which gave promise of the greatest future that they wanted. They "went after" with easy money and no future. Many vocations which pay the most money at first have the least future to them. If you must make sacrifices make them when you are just starting out in life. You will find it much easier to make them later. What you need at the outset is, the most of all, the biggest opportunity for growth and development, the job that has the larger possible future in it. If you are ambitious you won't look for a "soft snap" and "easy money."—Nat Service.

Square Musical Notes.

Shaped notes, that is, notes of square, lozenge, round and other forms than the conventional notes, are hardly known to most people of the musical world. Yet they were strongly indorsed and introduced by Lowell Mason to help in reaching sight singing and they are still used in enormous quantities in the South in rural districts. The scheme of the shaped note is to represent the different degrees of the scale by means of a different shape note. For any one who has passed the most elementary stages in music study the plan is quite useless in understanding qualities, intervals, etc., and it is not used in the large music centers to any appreciable extent.—The Etude.

Thus far, explorations have failed to solve the mystery of the origin of Stonehenge. It had been hoped that its passing into the hands of the government would finally shed light on this mystery, for excavations have been previously forbidden by the private owners of the property. Thus far, however, we do not know whether Stonehenge, battered and broken as it is today by centuries of exposure to the winds and rains, was originally a Roman temple or a Druidical shrine, the work of the Phoenicians, the Saxons or the Danes, or whether it was as has been claimed, a center of serpent worship, of sun worship, a place of sacrifice or of gallows for the execution of eminent criminals.

Not Disinterested.

PEPTO-MANGAN HELPS BLOOD

Keep the Quality of Your Blood at At its Best—it Means Vigorous Health and Ability to Accomplish.

Blood acts like a fuel. Pumped through the body by the heart, it sustains the muscles and tissues. It renews them. It feels the brain—the tissues of the eye and face. That is why people look so pale and lifeless when blood is impoverished. The body tissues are being supplied with weak fuel. The blood has not enough red corpuscles. You would not eat poor food with no nourishment in it; no more should you let the fuel that supplies sustenance to your entire body be inferior. Have good blood. Improve the quality and keep it at its best.

If you look pale and feel weak, if you have lost your enthusiasm and energy, if your blood is clogged with poisons, your system is being fed with a poor grade of blood. That is no way to go around. If you are not at your best, get at the source of the trouble right away. Put an end to half-living.

Take that ideal tonic, Pepto-Mangan, to tone up your blood and purify it. Get the full enojyment out of living. Breathe fresh air, take exercise.

Be sure to ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." It comes in convenient tablet form and in liquid. One has the same medicinal value as the other. There is only one genuine Pepto-Mangan, and the name "Gude's" is on the package. Advertisement.

KEPT OUT OF WAR, NOW SERVES COX

Publisher's Son Escaped Military Service Through Democratic Nominee's Influence.

Young, able-bodied, rich, a strapping big fellow, who possessed all the physical equipment of an American soldier, save, evidently, heart, Robert P. Scripps was kept out of the war through Administration influences.

He was exempted.

The local draft board of Butler County, O., rejected his plea and held that there was no valid claim for his exemption and that he should surely don a uniform and shoulder arms, but Secretary of War Baker's law partner, Tom Sidlo, was employed to save the youthful slacker. Governor Cox took a hand in the case, and finally, by White House decree, he went scot free.

His multi-millionaire father, E. W. Scripps, controlling owner of the Scripps League of Newspapers and the Newspaper Enterprise Association, a powerful combination, threatened to overthrow the Administration rather than permit either of his sons to answer the call of Uncle Sam.

Administration Exempts Slacker.

Having helped to re-elect Woodrow Wilson President on the issue, "He kept us out of war," the elder Scripps demanded that his sons be kept out of war. And the Administration kept them out.

Young Robert Scripps, who had never done any real newspaper work, was given the title of Assistant to the Publisher of the Scripps League of Newspapers to create an excuse for his exemption. Finally he was ordered home from Camp Sherman by Governor Cox, after he had been in uniform for ten days.

All these facts and more of an equally astounding and discreditable character were brought out by the Kenyon Senatorial Committee, which subpoenaed young Scripps to Washington to explain his activities in the present campaign.

Now Supporting Cox.

He is today editor in chief of the Scripps League of Newspapers and the Newspaper Enterprise Association and is putting out daily pink propaganda sheets of a lurid and sensational character in support of the candidacy of Governor Cox.

Samples of these sheets were submitted to the committee, and Senator Reed, Democrat, frankly denounced the propaganda as "rot" and manifested extreme impatience and disgust with the young man's loose talk about a "Senate oligarchy" and criticism of the Supreme Court.

Young Scripps, although he did not fight for his country in 1917-18, insisted that he was doing it all through love of country and in the "public interest," without any pay from the Democratic committee or thought of obligation for keeping him out of war.

The draft-dodging aspects of the case, as brought out at Washington, are not unlike those of young Bergdoll of Philadelphia, which resulted in a Federal prosecution for conspiracy to evade the draft.

Fifth Cousin Roosevelt devoted his speech at Providence, R. I., to a defense of eight years of Democratic administration. Six weeks is a very short time for doing much along that line.

The Cox slogan seems to be "Misrepresentation Without Relaxation."

"PARTY FACES DISASTER"—GORE

Senator Thomas Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, who was defeated for renomination through the influence of the White House because of his opposition to the League of Nations, plainly indicates that he proposes to continue his fight upon the league. The blind senator says:

"The paramount issue is to avert disaster; nobody favors the league that understands it.

"The women of Maine have read it. It is no wonder about the women. It is no marvel about the mothers. They are not willing to mortgage the pound of flesh nearest their hearts.

"They are not willing to sign this bloody bond which is a first lien upon the life of every boy beneath the stars and stripes.

"He was blind indeed who had not already seen the black shadow of the Maine elections visioned up on the horizon."

BACK PORCH CAMPAIGN TO BE BEGUN SOON BY WILSON.

Washington. — Gradually being pushed to the rear by the progress of the canvass it is now announced that President Wilson is to wage a "back-porch" campaign. The local evening papers announce this fact and say that the plan is being discussed by the Administration leaders. It may even come within a week, some of these leaders believe. Edmund H. Moore, who managed Governor Cox's pre-convention campaign, is given credit for this rear attack on the Harding method of using the front porch.

Origin of "Emerald Isle."

Ireland was first termed "the Emerald Isle" in a poem called "Erin," by Dr. Drennan, who lived in the latter half of the eighteenth century.

THIS SHOE FACTORY UNIQUE

How Women of the Belcher Islands Prepare the Walrus Hide for Foot Coverings.

The most peculiar boot factory in the world is probably that on the Belcher Islands, a small, barren, rock-ribbed group belonging to Canada, and 100 miles from the nearest Hudson Bay post off the Nastapokas. The shoes are made by the women of the colony, and are created from the skin of tanned walrus hides. The process that precedes the actual shaping of the boots consists of the women sitting in a row with large squares of hide in their hands, and solemnly chewing it inch by inch until the fat is removed from the hide. They squeeze the hide from time to time to loosen it up, and then go on with the chewing hour after hour.

For clothing the natives use the skins of eider duck, with the feathers worn inside, and while this makes a costume that has not been equaled for keeping out the cold, the odor arising from the skin is such that the few white explorers who have reached the island urged a return to Adam and Eve costume during their stay.

The first knowledge of the islands and their inhabitants came when Robert Flaherty, 21 years old, adventured out in the pay of Sir William MacKenzie, to locate them on the uncertain basis of an Indian legend. The admiralty chart showed that here was 20 fathoms of water where the islands are. Flaherty returned in triumph to disprove this.

HUMOR SUPERIOR TO WIT

Former Quality Always Kindly, While the Latter Is Inclined to Be Caustic.

Both wit and humor, like, art, poetry and love, are quite indefinable. But humor is the more elusive of the two. There are national types of wit, an English wit, a French wit, a German wit, an Irish wit, and—yes—a Scottish wit.

But humor is something universal, the curious and blessed gift that man has, all the world over, of discerning the incongruous in most things, remarks a writer in the Edinburgh Scotsman. Wit is related to the superficial, but humor dwells deep down in the inmost heart of us. Wit may be caustic; humor is kindly. Wit is the accompaniment of comedy and draws forth the loud guffaw of the top gallery of the music halls. But humor is not divorced from tragedy, and its laughter may be very close to tears.

Scottish "wit" is not English wit, but a sense of humor is the same in kind all the world over. Scottish wit, of both the deliberate and the accidental kind, consists very largely in a certain dry way of saying something so simple and obvious that it is least expected.

The English Vocabulary.

The number of English words not yet obsolete, but found in good authors, or in approved usage by correct speakers, including the nomenclature of science and the arts, does not probably fall short of 100,000. Few writers or speakers use as many as 10,000 words, ordinary persons of fair intelligence nor above three or four thousand. If a scholar were to be required to name, without examination, the authors whose English vocabulary was the largest, he would specify the all-embracing Shakespeare, and the all-knowing Milton. And yet in all the works of the great dramatist there seem not more than 15,000 words; in the poems of Milton not above 8,000. The whole number of Egyptian hieroglyphic symbols does not exceed 800, and the entire Italian operatic vocabulary is said to be scarcely more extensive.—George Perkins Marsh.

Picture postcards originated on the continent of Europe, probably in Germany and Austria, where the enterprising hotel keepers at the various spas of those countries induced their guests to send them to their friends as mementoes, with a shrewd idea of advertising their hostelries. At any rate, artistic postcards gradually became popular in Germany, France and Italy and other countries of continental Europe. They were introduced to the English-speaking people by the firm of Raphael Tuck & Sons, London, who were hindered at first by the British postal regulations, which would allow only a small part of the card to be devoted to a picture or view. Since then picture postcards have spread all over the world. They were first used in this country about 1897.

Success Lies Within Yourself.

It does not matter whether you were born in a hovel or in a mansion, it is within yourself that you will find the material that makes success. And if you have the right spirit, you will not urge lack of ability or of education as an excuse for failure or mediocrity. If you have the will to victory, you will not haggle about conditions or circumstances. The men who have accomplished great things did not wait for paraphernalia or for fine tools. It is not fine tools nor splendid opportunities nor influential friends nor great riches that make great men. The greatness is in the man or nowhere.—Orison Swett Marden in "You Can, but Will You?"

The Indications.

"Love is a fever in the system."

"Then I guess Smith must be in love with a grass widow, for he has hay fever."

The Slide Trombone.

The slide trombone is, without doubt, the oldest instrument still existing in its primitive form. All others have undergone remarkable changes, some of them even in recent years. The violin has been developed from the viol; the flute has been given keys and blown at the side instead of at the end; the trumpet and French horn have been supplied with valves; the piano has been developed from the dulcimer (borrowing the keyboard of the harpsichord and the clavichord), and the organ has had the most wonderful development of all. But ancient trombones have been unearthed in the ruins of Pompeii and elsewhere which are practically the same as those made today, except that we now have facilities for more accurate machine-work. The sackbut, mentioned in several places in the Bible, was nothing more nor less than our present slide trombone.

Ancient Sinai Tablets.

Older by thousands of years than the tablets of Moses, certain inscriptions in sandstone at the Magharah mines, on the Sinai peninsula, have convinced modern investigators that the product of these ancient workings was not copper, as supposed, but turquoise, an exchange says. The most marvelous product of those mines of antiquity is their inscriptions. The tablets, one of which measures 102 by 63 inches, are carved in relief, with remarkable character on sandstone, whose seemingly perishable nature has withstood the erosions of time since 4950 B. C.—some 3,700 years before Moses' day, and nearly 7,000 years before the twentieth century. Many valuable specimens have been destroyed by vandalic prospecting, but those remaining are now in the care of the Cairo museum.

Foolish Visionaries.

Many there are who have fine visions and dream great dreams and do nothing else. When in the mood they are filled with splendid conceptions and ideals, in which they revel with passionate enthusiasm; but when they turn from their vision to the hard task their enthusiasm evaporates. These are the idealists who often plan great things for others and for themselves, but whose lives are barren of results and filled with disappointments. They are rightly labeled "visionaries;" men who see much to do but do nothing. Shakespeare has created the type of such grand failure in Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, the type of the man who has visions but lacks obedience to the vision and resolution to carry it out.

Leaves Sweeter Than Sugar.

The United States department of agriculture has received from the consul at Asuncion, Paraguay, several ounces of dried leaves and a small quantity of seed of a wild plant that is about 180 times as sweet as sugar. It is called kan iee by the natives, and its botanical name is stevia rebaudiana. Another strange plant is the agbayun (synsepalum dulciferum) of southern Nigeria, the fruits of which are only slightly sweet, but have the peculiar property of making the sourest substances, such as limes lemons, unripe fruits or vinegar, eaten within 12 hours or so afterward seem intensely sweet.

Old-Fashioned Truth.

There is nothing so old-fashioned as the truth. It does not belong to the modern. It belongs back in the age when leg of mutton sleeves were the style, and before moving picture shows were known. Children seldom realize that they are lying, for they seldom lie. Theirs is imagination—and one must draw a fine line between imagination and lies. So we should encourage our children to use their imagination all they can for it is a sure sign that they may become great writers or great statesmen, or even some day become the president of the United States of America.—Exchange.

A vampish looking young woman entered the hotel dining room and cast a casual glance around the room and finally made her way towards a table at which sat a middle-aged man. She sat down at the table as though she were acquainted with him and started a lively chatter. The man neither raised his eyes nor answered, but finished his dinner, laid down a bill, and left the table. The idle waiters had been working hard to keep straight faces during the proceeding and one approached her and said: "That gink's as blind as a bat and deaf as a door nail."

Longevity and Right Living.

What is one man's meat may not exactly be another man's poison, yet a dozen or more theories may be given as to how long life may be attained, and all of such theories are constantly being set at naught by real facts. For instance, a given austerity did not kill Parr, who is said to have lived to one hundred and five. Again the excesses and dissipations of court life seemed to fail to paint an excellent picture when he was ninety-six years old. However, right living, while not a panacea in any individual, has an undoubted influence to increase the length of life in the offspring.

Watching His Step.

"No doubt you will leave footprints on the sands of time." "I don't know," answered Senator Sorghum. "Politics on my way has been requiring too much gum-shoe work to make the footprint prospect very favorable."

FLYING FOX IS REALLY A BAT

Pest of Australian Fruit Growers Has Been So Classed by Scientist Who Studied It.

The flying fox is really a bat of evil reputation. It is more properly called the fruit eating bat or fruit bat and the Australian fruit growers have long waged war on it, though so far without much success.

Prof. Moseley observed them in the Australian bush and described how, "In a dense piece of bush, consisting principally of young trees, the trees were hung all over with these bats, looking like great black fruits. As we approached," he says in an exchange, "the bats showed signs of uneasiness, and after the first shot were rather difficult to approach, moving from before us and pitching in a fresh tree some distance ahead. The bats uttered a curious cackling sound when disturbed. They were in enormous numbers, and although thousands had been shot not long before by a large party got together for the purpose, their numbers were not perceptibly reduced."

In Malaya the fruit bat is considered a great delicacy, and, cooked with plenty of spices and condiments, is said to taste something like hare. "Flying fox" is really a very good name for them, for the head is exceedingly like that of a fox. Some extraordinary flights of them, always in single file, have been observed over Calcutta.

HAS NO ONE RESTING PLACE

Bones of St. Adrian Are Scattered Pretty Well Over the Whole of Europe.

The most scattered saint in Europe is St. Adrian. Remains of this former Roman soldier are kept in the abbey of St. Adrian, in Geersburg, Belgium, but they are also kept at Raulcourt in the same country, and Ghent has still another full set of remains. The jaw and half an arm are shown at Cologne, a head at Bologna, and various parts of the saint's anatomy are also disclosed at Bruges and at Douai. He was formerly held to be the patron saint of soldiers, and was very popular with the wild troopers of northern France, Flanders and part of Germany centuries ago. He was also held dear by German brewers.

St. Adrian lived in the early part of the fourth century, and was one of the guard of the Emperor Galerius Maximian. He was superintending the torture of 34 Christians one evening, when their fortitude and patience so impressed him that he became a follower of the faith on the spot. His wife, already a Christian in secret, joined him in openly declaring his views. As punishment he had his limbs struck off one by one on an anvil and was then beheaded.

Ancient Irish Laws in Poetry.

Even a subject so essentially prosaic as the law was interwoven with poetry in ancient Ireland, where justice was administered by the File, or poet, the most important person in the country after the king. In olden times verse was employed when the matter to be recorded was of particular importance, or of a nature that called not only for grace and beauty of expression, but for dignity of language as well.

When the ancient laws of Ireland were revived, says the Christian Science Monitor, under the direction of St. Patrick, a File was summoned "to put a thread of poetry around them." This is believed one of the reasons that so much of the text of the Irish laws is in metrical form. From 12 to 15 years of special study was needed to qualify a File for the legal profession.

Cobbled steps mark the ways of the Moors in the Kasbah, the native quarter of Algeria, and once the traveler leaves the streets where street cars clang and Europeans walk, says an exchange, he must climb. Pepperpods and onions hang in rosaries beside bazaars. Mosques are hidden here and there in nests of houses and cafes are open to the street with the guttural gossip of the Arab drinkers and the click of dominoes drafting outward.

Sandals of leather, laced and filled with golden threads, are made by black-eyed Arab girls with long, soft eyelashes. Some of these girls are only twelve years old, but married; and they sit on carpets, twittering through their veils at passersby, meanwhile embroidering deftly the things they have to sell for gold.

Fine Workmanship.

Most of us carry two remarkable specimens of minute workmanship. They are both contained in our watch, if that article is of the ordinary pattern.

One is the name of the maker on the dial. This lettering, though only about 1-40 inch in height, is painted on by hand.

We are indebted to machinery for the other microscopic feature. Look, with a glass, at some of the screws, and you may find that the heads of the smallest are only 3-100 inch across and that the threads are sunk merely 2-100 inch.

This is fine work; but much more so is that in tiny watches which are incorporated in rings or ear-rings.

A Possible Resource.

"Binks, my neighbor, is always borrowing trouble."

"Then send him around. I have plenty to lend him."

A large crowd witnessed the game and the cheering was the finest that has been heard at the ball park since the time when Ellsworth Hickey was cheer leader. It is most gratifying to see the old C. H. S. 'Pep' returning to the school.

The visitors were pleased with their reception here and especially so at the Elk's Club, where they dined after the game.

The Elks not only permit the visiting teams to dine at the club house but also allow them free use of their bowling alleys and pool tables. The spirit which has prompted the Elks to extend these courtesies to isiting teams is most commendable and the high school student body is indebted to them for it.

FORD'S BIG VENTURE

During the last two month. Henry Ford and the Ford Motor Company have purchased the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad. a 400,000 acre timber tract in Northern Michigan. and a coal mine in Kentucky. And it is rumored that other purchases are under consideration.

Two thousand railroad workers are automatically made "Ford men." In the near future they will be permitted to share in the investment opportunity with the thousands of other Ford employees. The minimum wage system and bonus distribution will also apply to the railroad men.

The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad will soon be known by another name. A voiding congested centers, the railway is a direct line to the coal fields of Southern Ohio and the West Virginia and Kentucky boundaries. Solid coal trains may be routed through to Detroit without delay or interference.

Timber from virgin forests of the Upper Penisula of Michigan will be used to furnish lumber for Ford automobile bodies and other requirements. Another link added to the chain of Ford industries is the Ford saw mill. located just outside of Detroit.

These acquisitions are wonderful links in the chair of Ford industries. Fewer outside organizations are being depended upon year by year. Already work on the Ford car and Fordson tractor commences with the ore in Ford furnaces. Soon the coal will be transported from mines on a Ford railroad. and soon the timber will be cut from Ford virgin forests.

Including these new additions, the direct Ford payroll now contains approximately 100,000 names.

Through this column we desire to thank our many kind friends and neighbors for their sympathy shown to us at the burial of our soldier boy. We thank the soldiers and the G. A. R., also the Raymond Craft Post, and also those who sent floral tributes. Their kindness will remain long in our memory.

OUR JOB DEPARTMENT IS ALWAYS BUSY—
THERE'S A REASON

NOTED SINGER WILL APPEAR ON THURSDAY

An event of an unusual but most interesting nature is announced to occur at the high school auditorium, Thursday evening, when Madame Odette Le Fanu, the celebrated soprano will appear in a song recital, assisted by Mr. William Barry, pianist. Madame Fontenay is an artiste of international reputation and she will be heard by all who are in any way interested in the art of singing. On this occasion she has consented to sing Dr. Thomas A. Edison's recent laboratory recreations of her voice may be heard in comparison. The appearance here of this noted singer has been made possible through the business enterprise of W. B. Pfleghardt, local representative of the Edison talking machine, from whom tickets of admission may be obtained. free of charge. as long as accommodations remain. The recital is announced for 8:15 o'clock.

Early Visiting Cards.

Though there is evidence that the Chinese anciently wrote their names on bits of paper which they left to apprise absent friends of their call, it is from the revival of the customs by students in Italy that the use of personal cards was established in Europe. It was during the next century and in France. that center of extreme etiquette. that the idea found its greatest development. In accordance with the extravagance and elaborate ostentation characteristic of the time. the crude slip of paper was soon abandoned for the finely finished and decorated little square.

New Idea in Packing Cloth.

A paste of eucalyptus wood is stated to be the basis of the packing cloth of a manufacturer of Grenada, Spain. The paste is first made into paper, which is cut into long and narrow ribbons, and is then rolled into small reels. Each reel. placed on a spinning wheel, is held in position by a needle rotating 5,000 or 6,000 times a minute. The strip is twisted into a roll neither firm nor strong, and this is given greater resistance by soaking in a special glue that becomes insoluble on treating with hot vapors. The material is stretched for weaving into finer and stronger threads.

TROUBLES FROM MY AGE

Mrs. Baney tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her Through the Change of Middle Life.

Rochester, Ind.—"My troubles were from my age and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully. I took doctor's medicine and other patent medicine but the Vegetable Compound has helped my nerves more than anything I have ever taken. I am thankful to the one who recommended it to me and will surely do all I can in telling others what it has done for me." —Mrs. [illegible] East 9th St., [illegible]

When suffering from such symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, fear of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness should be heeded by middle-aged women and let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carry them safely through this crisis as it did Mrs. Baney.
